WHY BALI?

As Indonesia’s number 1 tourism destination that is known for its paddy fields, in Bali lies agriculture threat of the decreasing farmer population in rural areas.

Meanwhile agriculture has a big role for ingredient supply in tourism and farmers sustainability is needed to ensure that the island’s economy continue to thrive.

SMKN 1 Petang

Profession in Petang (FFI Field Research, May 2018)

Our initial focus for FFI is SMKN 1 Petang as the only agriculture vocational school left standing in Bali.

Land area : 9730 m²
Agro area : 2000 m²
Population : 319 students, 29 teachers
Majors : Agriculture Production & Food Processing

Most of the students come from farming family and the school itself is in the agriculture area.

By inspiring and giving further insights towards the future of agriculture to the students, we will raise new generation of Balinese farmers that have understanding towards business, market demand, environment and technology.

SMKN 1 PETANG will be developed as an agricultural research and development centre for farmers in Petang, especially those involved in cooperative:
